My Favorite One! I Hate That!

by James Turner (husband of Florene Turner, daughter of Helen Mae Tingley Ulrich Goss, daughter of Edith Gertrude Gage Tingley and Nelson Eugene Tingley)

When Florene's and my daughters were children, we established Movies at Home, which was on Friday nights. When our grandson, Jesse, learned about it, he decided that we should do it with our grandchildren and call it Friday Night Tradition. Off to Pay 'n' Save in Woodinville, Washington, Florene, Jesse, Daniel, Jett, and I would go. Up and down the candy aisle those three grandsons would go to choose their one candy each for the evening. Up and down the aisle Daniel would go saying, "Which one? Which one?" Finally he would decide on one, pick it up, and remark, "My favorite one!" When Jett decided on a candy, if it wasn't the same that Daniel had chosen, he would go to Daniel and try to persuade him that he wanted the same kind that Jett had selected. After a minute or less, Daniel would return his "favorite one" to its spot, saying, "I hate that," and pick the one that Jett had chosen and remark "My favorite one!" He was so cute. He was a little guy, a preschooler.

It's Trading Time

by Florene Turner (daughter of Helen Mae Tingley Ulrich Goss, daughter of Edith Gertrude Gage Tingley and Nelson Eugene Tingley)

When I was growing up, my mother (in the picture) always said that she was going trading when she was going to the market.

When Lori was in ninth grade and Jaden was in fifth grade, they would go grocery shopping with me. I would handwrite the list. (We did not have computers in that day.) If I wanted a specific brand name, I would write the brand name with the item. If I didn't want a specific brand name, I wanted the least expensive one, judging by price per unit so I didn't put a brand name by that item. (I did this because Jaden informed me of price per unit!)

Then I would tear the list in half. I would take a half list. I would tear the other half in half and give one to Lori and one to Jaden, my precious daughters from the God.

Then off to the market we went. We each took a push basket and off we went in three directions.

(It was nice to be safe then. There wasn't the fear that they would be kidnapped in a market.) Sometimes they would find me and ask about an item on the list. They shopped excellently; they never got anything wrong as I recall. They learned to shop by brand name and price per unit. They actually enjoyed it and never even once complained.

We had much fun grocery shopping during that time when Lori and Jaden learned to trade.

No Burglars Allowed!

by James Elton Turner Jr (husband of Florene Turner, daughter of Helen Mae Tingley Ulrich Goss, daughter of Edith Gertrude Gage Tingley and Nelson Eugene Tingley)

When Jaden Elle Turner (then Tracie Florene Turner) was four or five years, it was getting supper time and Lori was out and I wasn't home from work yet. Florene needed to find Lori. so she checked the back door to be sure that it was locked, turned the television on to something that Jaden liked, told Jaden that she was going to get Lori and would be right back and to lock the door when Florene went outside. Florene also told her to stay inside and not open the door for anyone except Florene. Jaden had always been a capable, sensible, and responsible little girl. Florene was uneasy, but felt confident that Jaden could handle it. It was still daylight.

So Florene went out the door, told Jaden to lock it, made certain that Jaden did, and Florene headed out looking for Lori. She found Lori within 10 or 15 minutes. Florene and Lori returned home at a run. (Our front door was a glass door by the way.)

Upon arrival home, Florene knocked. Jaden called back, "No burglars allowed!"

Florene looked through the glass door for Jaden and found that she was standing on the sofa, her back tight against the wall, right next to the door, and scared to death. My poor, darling, little daughter

Mrs. Butterworth, Where Are You?

by Florene Turner (daughter of Helen Mae Tingley Ulrich Goss, daughter of Edith Gertrude Gage Tingley and Nelson Eugene Tingley)

Aaron Prince (was Aaron Ulrich) was four years old. He was living in my home with his father and brothers. He and I went grocery shopping while the other children were in school. I needed to buy Mrs. Butterworth's syrup and couldn't find it. I'm not a good shopper, and I don't really like to shop. However, shopping with Aaron was a delight. He was riding in the seat part of the basket, and I was driving the basket.

When Aaron picked up on the fact that I couldn't find Mrs. Butterworth (while I continued shopping for the items on the long list), he quietly and gently called, "Mrs. Butterworth, where are you?" every minute or so. When I'd stop the basket to get something, he'd lean over and look between items on the shelf and quietly and gently call, "Mrs. Butterworth, where are you?"

I can still hear him calling Mrs. Butterworth to this day. What a lovely memory.

Two of 'Em

by James Elton Turner Jr (husband of Florene Turner, daughter of Helen Mae Tingley Ulrich Goss, daughter of Edith Gertrude Gage Tingley and Nelson Eugene Tingley)

When Lori Helen Turner (Rojas) was four, and I would reach into the cupboard for cookies for her, she would jump and hold up two fingers saying, "Two of 'em, two of 'em, two of 'em."

After a while of this, I realized that she wanted six cookies, but didn't know how to count to six .

Boom Burgers

by Glenn V. Tingley, Jr.

Saturday, Marcia wanted me to fix burgers and Vidalia onions on the grill that I set up on the back porch. The grill wasn't working right last time, and I had not checked for spider webs in the burner. That will affect the proper gas flow in the burner.

I had to watch and relight when the flame went out (about ten times). I'd lift the lid a bit on the side away from me, stick a lighter into a hole under the burner, pull the trigger, and BOOM - fire would shoot from under the lid and rattle the metal siding and awning, but after a while, I had Boom Burgers. They sure are good.

Sitting on a Plane

by Adam Ulrich (son of Glenn Wendell Ulrich, son of Helen Mae Tingley Ulrich Goss, daughter of Edith Gertrude Gage Tingley and Nelson Eugene Tingley)

I'm sitting on a plane at 39,000 feet over China right now. This shouldn't be too surprising if you know much about my work, as this is the seventh trip I've made to China in the last 3+ years. I just got done shipping Microsoft Express-sion (<http://www.microsoft.com/express>) Version 2 in late April, and we're working in China on shipping the eight localized versions of the product: Japanese, Korean, German, French, Italian, Spanish, Simplified Chinese, and Traditional Chinese. Work has been great. This is my first trip back to Shanghai since we left last July (2007), as I'd hurt my knee, and tried several months of physical therapy before I hurt it worse and needed surgery. In January 2008, they removed about 20% of the meniscus in my right knee. I'm finally able to get around well enough that I felt ok going back to Shanghai, where it's all walking, taxis, and subway. I'll be spending much more time in Shanghai this next year, perhaps two months between now and the end of the year.

Brenda and I celebrated our 20th anniversary in December by going to Cancun. We had a marvelous time. You can read about it and see all the pictures at the water and Mayan ruins' sites like Chichen Itza at my blog: <http://adamu.spaces.live.com/blog/>. Look for the December, 2007, entries.

Aaron turned 19 in September, and he is working at Trader Joe's. He is also going to school at Green River Community College. He plans on going to BYU-Idaho, and becoming a missionary. He finally passed the driver's test, and he's now helping Brenda a lot in running errands. He's driving the 14 year old Explorer van that has about 250,000 miles on it, and it's still running fine.

Garrison turned 15 in March, and has grown half a foot this year it seems. He plays the guitar in addition to the piano, and he is saving money to buy a drum set. He is amazing at guitar hero and rock band, having reached "expert" on all instruments.

Christian turned 10 in October. Christian and Rylan are on the same little league team. Christian's favorite position is catcher and he does a pretty decent job. He was really excited when his coach told him he was the team's official catcher! He is also turning out to be a really good pianist and has a great singing voice.

Rylan turned 9 in February. He played basketball for the first time this year and had a great time. He's enjoying baseball too. He's a great helper around the house and can make a good cheese omelet.

Jackson turned 7 in December. He is playing coach pitch baseball this year, and has decided to bat left handed. I'm not entirely sure why... He loves to play rock band with Garrison and can play "hard" or "expert" on most of the songs. He's incredible to watch! His little fingers just fly on the guitar and the piano both. He's always got a smile on his face!

Tori turned 4 in April. She got to go to the Build-a-Bear Workshop for her birthday, and she has a new best friend, a pink leopard named Princess. Aaron and Garrison got her an Easy Bake Oven for her birthday, and she is having fun with it. She loves to help Mom with the housework and cooking. It's fun to watch her with the boys playing rock band. She sings on "easy" and has many of the words to the songs memorized.

Brenda is as busy as ever. Between baseball, Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, home school, church, trying to keep the house up, and keeping Tori out of mischief, there's never a dull moment. She is glad that Aaron finally has his license and can drive himself to work and back and take over some of the chauffeuring duties for the family.

Just a Family Update

by Rosemary Kleiser (daughter of Richard Eugene Tingley (Sr.), son of Wilson Eugene Tingley, son of Nelson Eugene Tingley and Edith Gertrude Gage Tingley)

Hi!

My daughter, Erin Nowak, and her husband, Christopher, have moved back to California from Washington state. Their new address is Apartment E158, 333 Emerald Drive, Vista, California 92083. They are expecting their second son on July 4, 2008. Christopher will be leaving on June 9 with the Navy to head out on ship to the Philippines. Keep him in your prayers.

Also, my older son, Eric Juillerat, will be graduating college with his Bachelor Degree in Interior Design. We are all so proud; especially so because he will turn 22 years old only one week after his graduation!

Curtis, my younger son, has just finished a fun season of baseball, playing for the Rockies and also has gone full on into Boy Scouts. Next week he is going to Point Mugu Navy Base on an outing and will get to eat with the men on the ship and go to their museum. That will be a great trip. It is hard to believe that our baby will soon be a sixth grader...

Answer to riddle in Funnies -

Betty Jean Crowell was nicknamed Jetty Bean by Uncle Moses Ulrich (husband of Helen Mae Tingley Ulrich Goss, daughter of Edith Gertrude Gage Tingley and Nelson Eugene Tingley). He always called her Jetty Bean instead of Betty Jean.

Buda was the nickname for Dick Tingley by her sisters (Betty Crowell and Dorothy Stead) when playing Tarzan. (Picture: Donna York, Richard Tingley [Sr.], and Betty Crowell)

COD aka c.o.d.

by Florene Turner (daughter of Helen Mae Tingley Ulrich Goss, daughter of Edith Gertrude Gage Tingley and Nelson Eugene Tingley)

Back in the olden days, those days when hardly anyone had a credit card and there was no such thing as a debit card, there was COD. COD stands for Collect on Delivery.

When my daughters were little and we had only one car, which Jim used for transportation to and from work, which was commonplace back in those days, I could not go shopping. I ordered items that we needed from a few sources, mostly Sears & Roebuck (Sears) catalog. I specified COD, which was also rather commonplace in those days.

When the order was delivered, the delivery person would collect the amount of money. I always needed to be certain that I had the exact amount of money and stick around the house for the delivery. Sticking around the house wasn't a big deal because I didn't have wheels anyway.

My Inheritance

by Dorothy Stead (daughter of Wilson Eugene Tingley, son of Nelson Eugene Tingley and Edith Gertrude Gage Tingley)

I was one of several grandchildren so I did not expect an inheritance from my dear Grandma when she passed. Her passing was a sad day as she was the glue that held us all together.

Years later while spring cleaning, I discovered a real treasure. I found Grandma's tatting shuttle in my possessions. You may say, "What's a tatting shuttle?" Well, let me tell you that to me it was a precious memory that I will never forget.

The shuttle is red plastic about four inches long with a small hole in each end. Tatting is the process of work of making a netted kind of lace by looping and knotting strong cotton or linen thread on a hand shuttle.

I can still see her sitting in her chair twisting and turning the shuttle, producing beautiful lace. I wondered how in the world she did this. I am all thumbs so to me it was a marvel. I certainly did not inherit her knack of crocheting, knitting, or tatting.

As I got older, I can see what I really did inherit from her. As I sit and tell my great grandchildren about God and stories of Jesus, I can see Grandma. I have a lot of energy at 74 years, and I picture her always rushing around to get things done. There's not enough time to get everything done, so I worry about that. I feel I just have to keep praying for three or four generations to make sure they get to Heaven. Isn't that Grandma? Yes, her love of God and love of family flows in my veins.

I am proud that I am a Tingley woman. We come from good stock. Her memories linger on because of the life she led. I wouldn't change those days with Grandma for anything.

Will your ancestors remember you with admiration?

THE WICKENBURG SUN

May 16, 2001

50 years ago

First white child born here dies (Friday, May 18, 1951)

Mrs. Cora Alice Foster, said to be the first white child born in Wickenburg, died May 6 in Henryetta, Okla., according to a message sent here by E.P. Irwin of Henryetta.

Mrs. Foster, born April 6, 1869, was the first child of John Earl and Leanna Tingley. The Tingleys were members of a wagon train making their way to California from Hood County, Texas. After the loss of 2,000 head of cattle, caused by thirst, the wagon train disbanded at Wickenburg.

John Earl Tingley at one time carried the mail by stagecoach from Prescott to Tucson. On one trip, the stagecoach was attacked by Indians and Mr. Tingley was seriously wounded. He carried the bullets until his death about 30 years ago.

Mrs. Foster is survived by nine children, 32 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren. One daughter, Mrs. Louisa Clegg, is a resident of Phoenix.

From the Editors

by Betty Crowell and Florene Turner

Things to do –

- Dorothy Stead suggested a great idea! Let's find out about Tingley spouses. Will you, spouses, please write about you? For those who "can't write," will you have your Tingley mate write about you? What will you write? How you met, interesting romance episode, your childhood, your wedding, your work, your education, tragedy, et cetera –
- Remember to send in the military information about you and your Tingley relatives: dates of service, locations and bases, retired military, highest rank, medals, military branch, age during duty, positions worked, interesting events during service, current update. (Whatever you remember.) Send information on the deceased relatives also. This will be in the July edition so please don't put it off. However, if you can't get it in time for the July edition, it will go in an edition.
- Remember to save MONEY and time for the Tingley reunion in 2009. It's only a year away! Can you believe it!
- Send in your articles.
